

Is the Italian branch a telecommunications fiber optic cable

Preview

Italy's fixed broadband infrastructure relies primarily on telephone-line networks (DSL/VDSL) and increasingly on fiber-optic networks, with virtually no cable broadband infrastructure. In pursuit of this goal, the government has chosen to prioritise the expansion of fibre networks directly to homes (fibre to the home (FTTH)), rather than relying on copper cables or mixed technologies (such as fibre to the cabinet etc). What makes this initiative distinct is the Italian. The European Investment Bank (EIB) has approved a financing package of up to EUR1 billion for FiberCop, the company that manages the most advanced and extensive digital infrastructure in Italy, to expand and modernise the national ultrafast broadband network. With nearly 28 million kilometres of fibre optic cable already laid - a distance equal to more than 700 times the Earth's circumference - and ultra-broadband coverage reaching over 96% of active lines, the.
